Ontario principal given state award

Elderberry students gain from his motivating ways

By Natalie Shore

John Duncan's get-rich-quick winnings total only $5 in the state lottery

But the Ontario principal's 30 years of enriching children's lives netted him $25,000 Sept. 19 from the state Department of Education

Hours after the announcement, news that Duncan had won the 1989 California Educator Award had not completely sunk in. Referred to as California's Nobel prize of education by a department spokeswoman, the prestigious annual award is given to only 12 people a year.

'These things don't happen. I've been doing this for 30something years, and it has never happened before, Duncan said.

But the award came as no surprise to Ontario-Montclair school officials, who say Duncan more than meets the selection criteria for the coveted award. Motivating students, starting innovative programs, leading teachers and involving parents and the community is what the principal of Elderberry School is all about, said school board member David Van Fleet.

"It's a statement of excellence for somebody who cares about children. That's exactly what John Duncan represents," Van Fleet said.

School officials agree that Duncan's name has been associated with excellence in education since the 56-year-old Texan came to the area in the early 1960s. Duncan first taught in Cucamonga schools and then moved to Ontario-Montclair schools as a principal in 1972.

Duncan's achievements drew statewide attention during his 12 years at Monte Vista School, where he gained a reputation for knowing every student by name. By allowing fourththrough sixth-grade students to chose their classes according to their strengths and interests, children flourished and test scores soared, said Duncan, who insisted no one educates a child by himself.

As a result, Monte Vista won a Distinguished School Award from the state Department of Education in 1987, said district spokeswoman Kathy Kinley.

Like a Nobel laureate, the winner of a state Educator Award does not apply for the honor, said Department of Education spokeswoman Susie Lange. The winner is simply someone who has contributed to education and children repeatedly over the years out of the thousands of public and private school educators statewide, she said.

'They have been recognized from their peers and within the field of education for excelling in what they do and what they do consistently.

"They are people whose names come to us because they continually show up when excellent programs and activities are taking place and are part of that and a catalyst for change in our schools," she

Complaint filed over apartment project OK

By Kathy Betts

The head of an unsuccessful Upland recall group has filed a complaint with the state Fair Political Practices Commission alleging that two city council members voted for an apartment project despite a conflict of interest.

But what the Upland citizens' group is calling conflict of interest, City Attorney Donald Maroney calls a common practice.

The practice is that of city officials approving a commercial project before knowing who will finance it.

In question is a July 1988 vote by the council in which members Rosalie Kamansky and Al

Canestro supported the consolidation of three city lots to build 28 apartment units at 11th Street just east of Fifth Avenue. The council was hearing an appeal by the developers after the city planning commission rejected the project.

The commission and the council were hearing the request in compliance with an ordinance passed in April 1988 that requires commission approval of all multiple-family projects consisting of three or more units within Upland city limits. Project developers who are turned down by the commission can appeal to the City Council.

A sign at the project site says financing is by the Upland branch of Foothill Independent Bank. Kamansky has owned common stock in the bank for 11 years, and Canestro has held bank shares for 14 years, according to documents on file at Upland City Hall.

Donald Lane, president of the 35- to 50-member Citizens for Better Government group, has asked the council to investigate

Area Hospice needs money to keep serving the dying

By Maresa Archer

The Inland Hospice Association is nearly out of money and may be faced with closing its doors Jan. 1 if new funds are not found.

The Pomona-based hospice is a non-profit organization that has served the Pomona Valley for about a decade. Four staff members and 65 volunteers help terminally ill patients face their

The yearly budget of $120,000 is nearly exhausted with only about $10,000 left in the organization's coffers. Operating costs run $6,000 a month, according to Anthea Lunsford, director of the program. A rummage sale and benefit golf tournament are expected to raise enough money to fund the hospice through December, Lunsford added.

The executive director position was eliminated in August to try and save money. That left only two full-time and two part-time employees to run the program: Lunsford's position as director of volunteers, a secretary and an licensed vocational nurse and registered nurse who split their job.

About one quarter of the hospice's budget comes from the United Way with the remainder received from private donations, according to Lunsford.

When the hospice movement hit the American shores from England during the 1970s, there was ample funding from big corporations and an enthusiastic public. But the corporations people have not been as giving.

'I think because we've been here for nearly 10 years they have forgotten about us. Part of it is that we have not kept a high profile," Lusford said. "That's partly because people don't like to talk about death, I would like to see that change.

Lunsford also said it is sometimes hard to attract big money when an organization's office is humble and there are no fancy society benefits.

The hospice is not a homecare facility but an outreach program that visits patients in nursing homes, hospitals and private residences. The volunteers not only counsel the patient, but also the family to help everyone accept the terminal diagnosis.

a possible conflict of interest by Kamansky and Canestro because of their stock holdings in Foothill Independent Bank

Lane, who with other group members was behind an unsuccessful recall of four council memebers earlier this year, claims to only represent himself in requesting an investigation. In the recall petitions, the group claimed the four council members were not supporting the slow growth position of their constituents.

However, Pat McDonough, the group's vice president, also has written to the Fair Political Practices Commission on behalf of the citizens group asking for an investigation. The commission is reviewing the vote, but John McClean, spokesman for the commission, would not comment further on the matter

The non-profit citizens group, which was formed prior to the recall drive, was designed to "serve as a community watchdog" and to eliminate voter apathy, McDonough said. The group also works to increase voter registration but due to its

Road work tops Montclair's project list

By William Diepenbrock

An estimated $1.4 million in road reconstructions and traffic light upgrades tops Montclair's official list of five-year projects for funding through Measure I, the half-cents sales tax increase on the November ballot.

Montclair City Council recently unanimously approved the improvements on Mills Avenue between San Bernardino and Palo Verde streets and on Holt Boulevard between Mills and Monte Vista avenues.

Measure I is a 20-year special tax hike intended to generate $1.6 billion for transportation projects.

Altogether, the city has been told to expect $1.1 million over the five years for these projects.

Mayor Larry Rhinehard said the funding gap would be made up by Montclair's treasury.

He added that the list, part of a 20-year transportation plan

Montclair has slated for Measure I, is not a matter of "counting chickens before they hatch."

"This is a requirement," he explained. "It's not a matter of establishing a plan without approval."

The 20-year-list spotlights Holt Boulevard and Central Avenue reconstructions and pavement overlays. Arrow Highway and other main Montclair thoroughfares also are featured.

In the 20 years, Montclair expects to receive $6.8 million, a minor amount compared to the $400 million that Measure I designates for local projects and major street work.

Measure I concentrates its revenues on construction of the Foothill Freeway and four major freeway or highway widening plans, which comprise $1.1 billion of the measure's funds.

Another $100 million would be directed at a commuter rail system through San Bernardino County. The City Council unanimously endorsed the project's development Sept. 18 and advocated creation of a Montclair station.

So far, a stop at the Montclair Transcenter at Monte Vista Avenue and Arrow Highway has survived one examination by the San Bernardino Associated Governments. Seven other stops in San Bernardino County and nearby Los Angeles County cities also are in the running.

Upland businesses rally to hospital blood drive

Local businesses and San Antonio Community Hospital itself will be donating gifts and services to increase the turnout to the hospital's blood drive Thursday, Oct. 12.

A free lunch pass from the hospital's cafeteria and a free car wash donated by Upland's

Mission Car Wash will be given to every blood donor on Oct. 12 from 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. in the hospital's Aita Auditorium.

The Blood Bank of San Bernardino and Riverside Counties will give any resident, who has donated a minimum of three times in 1989, a "Heard it at the blood bank" T-shirt.

Anyone in good health from 17 to 76 years of age, weighing at least 100 pounds, can donate blood. Those over 69 must have a yearly written consent from their physician.

non-profit status is not allowed to support political candidates, she said.

Lane, who lives near the apartment project on 11th Street, has opposed more apartments being built in the city's southeast quadrant. He has opposed more apartment construction in the area on the basis of traffic congestion.

Last week Lane asked the council to review the planning commission's 5-1 vote to deny the project based on traffic concerns. He also asked that the council's 3-0 vote overturning the planning commision be reviewed. The council claimed the project was the best use for Kamansky, Canestro and Mayor Robert Nolan voted in favor of the project. Councilman Thomas McGilloway was absent.

Nolan does not hold stock in Foothill Independent Bank, according to 1988 statements of economic interest on file at City Hall. Kamansky and Canestro estimated the value of their common stocks at $54,400 and $30,000, respectively.

Canestro said the call for review was "sour grapes" in the aftermath of Lane's failed recall effort.

"If one-eighth of one percent interest in the bank qualifies for a conflict of interest, I will eat Mr. Lane's hat," Canestro said.

Until Lane brought it to his attention, Canestro said, he did not know who was financing the project. Kamansky said she didn't know until she saw the sign at the construction site 'When property goes through many builders (as in the case of the apartment project), lots of times they change financing at the last minute to get the best interest rate," said Kamansky, who has been a real estate broker for 35 years.

She said when council members are considering a project "we're just concerned whether it's zoned properly and goes through (city) planning," adding that the apartments in question met zoning requirements.

She said she was "very much surprised" Lane would ask for an investigation, but she believes "he is so angry because it's across the street from where he lives. And I'm real sorry. We all have things we're not real crazy about."

She stressed that transients had slept in old homes previously on the site and drugs were sold there. "I think (the project) will bring the area up." When it comes to commercial projects, Planning Director Jeff Bloom said that Upland planners "don't require the submittal of

WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD THAT WORKS!!

Give readers the information they want and get the results... YOU want.

Put yourself in the reader's place. If you were considering buying this item what would you want to know about it? Give the item's age, condition, size, brand name and any other information needed to describe it accurately and completely.

avoid abbreviations.

A few standard abbreviations can help you save space but don't overdo it. Too many abbreviations will make your ad look like a secret coded message. Rather than trying to figure out what you're trying to say, confused readers will go on to the next ad.

include price.

Price is one of the biggest concerns of classified readers. Ads that list prices will get their attention first. Including the price will also help you avoid inquiries from readers not in your price range.

List your telephone number or address so potential buyers will know HOW to contact you. State the best hours to call so they'll know WHEN to contact you. If you're not home when an interested prospect calls, chances are he won't call back.

feel free to ask for help.

Because help is free for the asking. The Daily Report maintains a staff of professional Advisors who write dozens of ads every day. They'll be happy to help you word your ad for the best results.

Place your classified ad TODAY!
